Watch Enforces Curfew Rule

As the number of victims rises in the rash of murders plaguing Aلدorf, the Watch have instituted a curfew. All citizens are to be at home no later than an hour past dark. This curfew has impacted a number of taverns, including the Rippingnet Tavern. Although rumours are running rampant as to what is causing the deaths, the Watch has issued the following statement. "We are investigating a number of suspects, and we have this situation under control. Anyone with any information that assists us will be rewarded. Otherwise, everyone should remain calm. The last thing anyone wants is to create a big panic - it's not like the world is ending!"

Fire Breaks Out In Unterzeit

The fire regiment was summoned to put out the flames that started in the grain houses near the Unterzeit district. Greenish flames rapidly consumed the structures and destroyed the grain held inside. The only consolation in this, the grain was already marked for destruction as it was determined to be the cause in the recent outbreak of pox. The area was covered in a musky, greenish fog as the grain houses were consumed, and the local magistrates are urging citizens to remain indoors until the area can be cleared.

Reiksguard Engaged

Late last week the Reiksguard were called out to the clearing near Little's bend. There they found a small force of goblins had managed to waylay a carriage, and assault the drivers. Our brave soldiers immediately closed in and engaged the goblins, and were gaining the upper hand, when one of the creatures was able to sound off a distress call from the horn at his belt. The call summoned more of the small creatures, and a large Orc. Praceptor Knight, Brenner von Bruner, was able to counter the Orc's reckless approach with his conservative stance. This cool-headed approach to the combat saved more than a few men's lives. Not everyone was so fortunate, as the Orc was able to deal out some critical wounds to the heavily armoured Reiksguard. After some dazzling swordplay, the Orc was slain and the goblins routed. Inside the carriage was merchant Ludwig Croop, who was extremely grateful to have been saved.

Pie Vendor Held For Questioning

With the latest outbreaks of the pox hitting faster, local authorities have been investigating sources other than the suspected grain houses.

Their investigation led down a dark path, leading directly to a local food vendor. The pies he had been selling were found to contain tainted meat. Authorities have cautioned citizens to be sure they are purchasing comestibles from reputable vendors, and warn against purchases from pie merchants in the poor district.

3 Ambassadors to Meet with Karl Franz

Representatives from the High Elves of Ulthuan, the Wood Elves of Athel Loren, and the Dwarfs of Karak Azgarag recently arrived in the capital. Strangely absent was the ambassador for the Halflings, who could not be reached for comment. These powerful beings have come to our city in the name of alliance in these dark times. Each faction has brought at least 3 regiments of some of their finest warriors. The Sword Masters are bladesmen without peer, and are here on behalf of the High Elves. The thick armour or the Dwarfen Iron Breakers will shield them in these dark times. The fluid grace of the Wood Elf Wardancers is a deadly tribute to their bizarre ritual dances. Do not be afraid of these members of these ancient races, they are here to help our city.

Raid On Warehouses Provides Shocking Results

The Watch stormed the warehouses along the river, after receiving an anonymous tip. Over 30 members of the Watch entered the building and began searching for suspected smugglers at the outset of the encounter. During the act, they found was crate after crate of missing merchandise, reported to have been stolen last week. Oddly enough, a single crate was found containing a small amount of greenish powder, oddly shaped brass implements, and several brightly coloured placards, similar to playing cards, of unknown purpose. Although no individuals were apprehended in the raid, the Watch is confident that they will have the fugitives in hand within the week.

Dais Pool Now Open

Recently added to the newest incarnation of Wilhelm's Food and Restocking Palace, this swimming facility will allow citizens to enjoy the pleasures of swimming without the dangers of the river. This pool is only the first step. Fortune willing, the Dais Pool will be expanded soon. Every dedicated member will gain the new benefits as they become available, and Wilhelm hopes access to this innovation will be a boon to his business. Wilhelm kindly provided a copy of the schematics used for his unique Dais Pool, which the Daily Aldorfer is pleased to share with our readers.

Retraction

The staff of the Daily Aldorfer would like to retract some of the statements made last week. Due to an unfortunate oversight, zealots were able to modify a number of entire entries and hide things inside those messages. Please disregard any information found inside that edition. If you have any information, please seek out a member of the Watch.
